Writings of Smitu Kothari

Table of Contents

Lest We Forget
(Agenda, The Pioneer on Sunday, August 14, 2005).

The Violence of Development
(Introduction to a special issue of Development, Jan.-March, 2004).

Demanding Accountability

Nature as Value: Ecological Politics in India

A History of Commissions

The United Nations and Corporate Accountability

Out of the Nuclear Shadow

Globalization, Global Alliances and the Narmada Movement
(In Sanjeev Khagram, Kathryn Sikkink and James Riker, eds., Restructuring World Politics: Transnational Social Movements, Networks, and Norms, 2002).

Sovereignty and Swaraj: Adivasi Encounters with Modernity and Majority
A Million Mutinies Now. Lesser-Known Environmental Movements
(\textit{Humanscape}, October 2001).

\textbf{To be Governed or to Self-Govern}
(\textit{The Hindu Folio}, July 15, 2000).

\textbf{Social Movement Politics in India: Interests, Identities and Institutions}

\textbf{The Struggle for Autonomy}

\textbf{The Awakening of Civil Society in the Third World}

\textbf{Whose Independence? The Social Impacts of Economic Reforms in India}
(\textit{Journal of International Affairs}, July 1997).

\textbf{Whose Nation is it? The Displaced as Victims of Development}

\textbf{Social Movements, Ecology and Justice}

\textbf{The Damming of the Narmada and the Politics of Development}

\textbf{Cultural Pluralism and Development and Social Movements and Culture: An Ecological Perspective}
(Both prepared for the UNESCO World Commission on Culture and Development, 1995).

\textbf{Ecology and Security in South Asia}

\textbf{Sustainability and Development}

\textbf{Global Economic Institutions and Democracy: A View from India}

A Commentary on Tribal Identity
(Seminar, March 1994).

Social Movements and the Redefinition of Democracy

Incompatibility of Sustainability and Development: In Search of Social Justice

No Nature without Social Justice

The Human Rights Movement in India

The State as Executioner
(PUCL Bulletin and Illustrated Weekly of India, April 1987).

There’s Blood on Those Matchsticks: Child Labour in Sivakasi
(Economic and Political Weekly, June 1985).

Culture, Creative Opposition and Alternative Development: Sustaining Struggle in the Koel-Karo Valleys

Challenging Centralised Governance: The Struggle for Self-Rule